Dear President Trump,

As a grateful citizen of the United States of America, I write to you with a heavy heart, a hopeful spirit, and an urgent plea.

We are approaching a monumental moment in our nation's history: the 250th Anniversary of our founding in 1776. This milestone calls not only for celebration, but for reflection—and above all, for rededication.

Two hundred and fifty years ago, our nation was birthed by the sacrifices of patriots who pledged their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor in pursuit of liberty. But what many forget—or intentionally ignore—is that from the very beginning, America was dedicated to Almighty God.

On April 30, 1789, after taking the oath of office as our first President, George Washington led his Cabinet and members of Congress on foot to St. Paul's Chapel in New York City. There, he knelt in prayer, humbling himself before the Creator, and dedicated this new republic to God's divine providence. It was a solemn and sacred beginning, one that acknowledged God as the true Author of Liberty.

Today, we find ourselves at another turning point. Our nation is deeply divided. We have seen a rise in political violence, censorship of faith, and a culture that mocks virtue and punishes truth. The recent senseless political assassination of bold Christian leaders like Charlie Kirk, who stood fearlessly for his faith, his country, and the Constitution, is a sobering reminder of how far we've strayed.

We are in a moment that demands bold leadership and moral clarity.

Mr. President, we ask you to do what our first President did on April 30th, 1789: lead our nation in a public rededication to God. Let the 250th Anniversary be marked not only by fireworks and speeches, but by prayer, repentance, and renewal. Let us return to the foundation that made America exceptional: "One Nation Under God."

You have always been a champion for faith, life, liberty, and the forgotten men and women of America. Now we ask you to be a champion for national spiritual revival. We are ready. We are praying. And we stand with you.

With hope and conviction,
